

Draft Programme of Action (PoA)

TIME FOR PUBLIC SERVICES!

EPSU 11TH CONGRESS
18-20 JUNE 2024, BUCHAREST

Table of Contents

X. Introduction	3
Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	8
Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	15
Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	24
Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	37
Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	49

EPSU 11th Congress – 18-20 June 2024, Bucharest

Time for Public Services!

Draft Programme of Action

with recommendations from the Executive Committee (EC)

X. Introduction	Amendments	EC recommendations
X1. EPSU has been at the heart of the European fight to defend and improve public services and the pay and conditions of public service workers. For the past 45 years, it has been campaigning, negotiating and advocating for positive social change, greater equality, for more and better public services for all and for urgent action to ensure a just climate transition. From the start, EPSU has sought to build a strong, independent federation capable of uniting members across Europe and advancing a common agenda. We draw strength and pride from our achievements as we continue to deliver for public service workers and our communities, putting people and the environment before profits. We are there for the many, not the few.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates X1. EPSU has been at the heart of the European fight to defend and improve public services and the pay and conditions of public service workers. For the past 45 years, it has been campaigning, negotiating and advocating for positive social change, greater equality, for more and better public services for all and for urgent action to ensure a just climate transition. From the start, EPSU has sought to build a strong, independent federation capable of uniting members across Europe and advancing a common agenda. We draw strength and pride from our achievements as we continue to deliver for public service workers and our communities, by fighting against a	Accept

X. Introduction	Amendments	EC recommendations
	society based on the quest for profit and putting people and the environment before profits. We are there for the many, not the few. putting the general interest of humanity and the environment at the heart of our actions and demands.
X2. EPSU is part of a common struggle for political, social and economic justice, for equality, peace and democracy, freedom of expression, the rule of law, and for strong European and national social dialogue and workplace democracy. EPSU’s broad agenda reflects the need to work with the ETUC and PSI on different fronts across geographical and institutional boundaries, uniting our members and workers from Iceland and Ireland to Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan and from Norway and Finland to Malta and Turkey.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: X2. EPSU is part of a common struggle for political, social, economic and environmental justice, for the fight against climate change, for equal rights and opportunities, peace and democracy, freedom of expression, the rule of law, and for strong European and national social dialogue and workplace democracy. EPSU’s broad agenda reflects the need to work with the ETUC and PSI on different fronts activities are very wide-ranging, since they transcend geographical and political borders, uniting members our members and workers from Iceland and Ireland to Kazakhstan and Kyrgyzstan and from Norway and Finland to Malta and Turkey. To successfully implement its priorities within this framework, EPSU relies on its membership of ETUC and PSI, with which it cooperates closely.	Accept Accept (see below) Accept deletion and reformulate original to read: “...EPSU’s activities are very wide-ranging, since they transcend geographical and political borders, uniting members right across EPSU’s broad, pan-European region.” Accept

X. Introduction	Amendments	EC recommendations
X3. In the next Congress period we will continue to deliver on our commitments to ensure quality public services and quality jobs for public service workers while responding to new threats to peace and security, to democracy and to human rights. We will maintain our determination to tackle growing inequality and poverty, the climate crisis and environmental degradation. We know for certain that working people, our families and communities will be the losers if we are not able to provide an effective answer to growing problems of violence, fascism and the far-right, and to social, economic and ecological injustice.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: X3. In the next Congress period we will continue to deliver on our commitments to ensure continue to support the development of quality public services for everyone and quality jobs for public service workers while responding to new threats to peace and security, to democracy and to human rights and the conditions of life on earth. We will maintain our determination to tackle growing inequality and poverty, the climate crisis, global warming and environmental degradation, wars and the rise of identitarian isolationism. We will remain vigilant to support the ongoing digital revolution, so that it benefits workers and citizens alike. We know for certain that working people, our families and communities will be the losers if we are not able to provide an effective answer to growing problems of violence, fascism and the far-right, and to social, economic and ecological injustice.	Accept Accept Accept with rewording to explain ‘identitarian isolationism’: “We will maintain our determination to tackle growing inequality and poverty, the climate crisis, environmental degradation, wars and the rise of politics based on promoting a narrow nationalist agenda. We will remain vigilant to support the ongoing digital revolution, so that it benefits workers and citizens alike.”
X4. Strong, independent and inclusive trade unions are essential to defend and strengthen democracy, the rule of law, non-discrimination, gender equality, social and economic justice and building peaceful, sustainable and more equal societies. We oppose all forms of	Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: X4. Strong, independent and inclusive trade unions are essential to defend and strengthen democracy, the rule of law, non-discrimination, gender equality, social and economic justice and building

X. Introduction	Amendments	EC recommendations
racism, xenophobia and discrimination. We stand for unity over division, for equality for all regardless of ethnicity, origin, nationality, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, age and/or religion.	peaceful, sustainable, fairer and more equal societies. Proposed amendment by French affiliates: X4. Strong, independent and inclusive trade unions are essential to defend and strengthen democracy, the rule of law, non-discrimination, gender equality, social and economic justice and building peaceful, sustainable and more equal societies. We demand freedom of association everywhere, and continue to fight against the growing repression of union leaders and restrictions on trade union rights. We oppose all forms of racism, xenophobia and discrimination. We stand for unity over division, for equality for all regardless of ethnicity, origin, nationality, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, age and/or religion.	Accept Accept
X5. Developing public services is central to addressing the challenges faced by workers and our communities. Together we can make change. The Future is Public. It is time for public services!	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: X5. Developing public services is therefore central to addressing the challenges faced by workers and our communities. Together we can make change. The Future is Public. It is time for public services!	Accept
X6. This programme of action provides the basis for our joint work in the coming Congress period, to be developed with

X. Introduction	Amendments	EC recommendations
members across all the 49 countries in EPSU’s European region; in our sectors (health and social services, local and regional government, utilities, central government and EU administration); and transversal groups and networks (including women and gender equality, and young workers); and in close cooperation with both the ETUC and PSI. The programme of action sets out the overall direction for our work and the main areas where we want to focus our collective resources.
X7. The Programme of Action is set out in five sections: A. Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms B. Reclaiming and strengthening public services C. Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition D. Quality jobs make for quality services E. Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Proposed by LVSADA, Latvia: C. Fighting Contributing for a green, digital and socially just transition¹ Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C. Fighting for an ecological green, digital and socially just transition	Reject (Actions are more than just “contributing”) Reject (“Green” is preferred term)

Thanks to the many affiliates who have contributed to the drafting of the PoA through the Congress Resolutions Committee, the Standing Committees, Constituency Meetings, Executive Committee and other networks and meetings.

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
A1. The war in Ukraine has shattered Europe’s security. We condemn the Russian war of aggression and support the Ukrainian people’s fight for democracy, sovereignty and territorial integrity. We call for a cessation of Russian aggression, the withdrawal of Russian troops from all occupied territories, and for peace negotiations. We call for war criminals to be prosecuted and for reparations to be made to Ukraine for damages caused. We support the efforts of the EU and the international community to help rebuild Ukraine and insist that these efforts strengthen human, social and trade union rights and democracy. Trade unions must be fully involved in this effort. We expect and demand that the rule of law, freedom and trade union rights be upheld and not further undermined under the pretext of war.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A1. The war in invasion of Ukraine has shattered Europe’s peace, stability and security. We condemn the Russian war of aggression and support the Ukrainian people’s fight for democracy, sovereignty and territorial integrity. We call for a cessation of Russian aggression the war, the withdrawal of Russian troops from all occupied territories, and for peace negotiations. We call for war criminals to be prosecuted and for reparations to be made to Ukraine for damages caused. We support the efforts of the EU and the international community to help rebuild Ukraine and insist that these efforts strengthen human, social and trade union rights and democracy. Trade unions must be fully involved in this effort. We expect and demand that the rule of law, freedom and trade union rights be upheld and not further undermined under the pretext of war. We will support diplomatic initiatives to find a way out of the conflict.	Accept Accept Accept with change: “As with all conflicts, we will support diplomatic initiatives to find a way out of the conflict.”
A2. The future of Europe cannot be founded on further militarisation and there will be no lasting peace without social and economic justice, democracy and respect for human rights. EPSU supports the rebuilding of security arrangements based on these principles along with	Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: A2. [...] Public services are a crucial element in ensuring and maintaining peace, as well as an effective and efficient economy. EPSU therefore opposes further privatisation in Ukraine that is sought by the International	Accept

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
long-term disarmament. Action is needed to address the growing violence and aggression evident in some parts of Europe. Within the European Union (EU) there is a need for better coordination of foreign and defence policy in support of long-term disarmament, peace and stability in Europe and beyond. Public services are a crucial element in ensuring and maintaining peace, as well as an effective and efficient economy. It is vital that they get the structural funding and investment necessary to strengthen and extend this role, with governments applying a ‘golden rule’ to actively support socially and environmentally friendly investments. This is all the more important in economies devastated by war and other disasters.	Monetary Fund and calls instead for the strengthening of Ukrainian public services. It is vital that they public services get the structural funding and investment necessary to strengthen and extend this role, with governments applying a ‘golden rule’ to actively support socially and environmentally friendly investments. This is all the more important in economies devastated by war and other disasters. Proposed amendment from EPSU Secretariat: A2. [...] It is vital that they get the structural funding and investment necessary to strengthen and extend this role, with governments applying a ‘golden rule’ to actively supporting socially and environmentally friendly investments. This is all the more important in economies devastated by war and other disasters. Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A2. The future of Europe cannot be founded on further militarisation and there will be no lasting peace without social and economic justice, democracy and respect for human rights. EPSU supports the rebuilding of security arrangements based on these principles along with long-term disarmament. Action is needed to address the growing violence and aggression evident	Accept (clarification of ‘golden rule’) Accept (disarmament mentioned in next sentence)

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
	in some parts of Europe. Within the European Union (EU) there is a need for better coordination of foreign and defence policy in support of long-term disarmament, peace and stability in Europe and beyond. Public services are a crucial element in ensuring and maintaining peace, as well as an effective and efficient economy. It is vital that they get the structural funding and investment necessary to strengthen and extend this role, with governments applying a 'golden rule' to allow allowing the active support of socially and environmentally friendly investments. This is all the more important in economies devastated by war and other disasters.	Accept (clarification of 'golden rule')
A3. The undermining of social justice and democracy in Europe is a factor in the rise of conflicts. Attacks on human and trade union rights, on freedom of expression, on civil liberties and press freedom are linked to the weakening of democracy and shrinking of public space. The rise of fascism and the extreme right is a threat to workers and our communities. We refuse all contact or cooperation with representatives from far-right organisations.	Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: A3. The undermining of social justice and democracy in Europe is a factor in the emergence of, and increase, in conflicts. Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A3. The undermining of social justice and democracy in Europe is a factor in the rise of conflicts. Attacks on human and trade union rights, on freedom of expression, on civil liberties and press freedom are linked to the weakening of democracy and shrinking of public space. The rise of fascism and the extreme right is a threat to workers and our communities. We refuse all contact or	Accept

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
	cooperation with representatives from far-right organisations. We must strongly denounce fascist ideas at every opportunity and train union members to decode discourse that is harmful to employees.	Accept (with rewording to explain “decode discourse”: “We must strongly denounce fascist ideas at every opportunity and train union members to expose how the ideology of the far right is harmful to employees.”
A4. The concentration of wealth in the hands of the few is fuelling the erosion of collective, solidarity-based values that protect people. The growth of extreme wealth, irresponsible consumption, corruption and a concentration of political and economic power goes hand in hand with inequality, tax dumping, the weakening of public services, attacks on workers’ rights and environmental degradation. A fair distribution of wealth and income underpins more democratic societies and decision-making.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A4. The concentration of wealth in the hands of the few is fuelling the erosion of collective, solidarity-based values that protect people. The growth of extreme wealth, irresponsible consumption, corruption and a concentration of political and economic and media power goes hand in hand with inequality, tax dumping, the weakening of public services, attacks on workers’ rights and environmental degradation. A fair distribution of wealth and income underpins more democratic societies and decision-making.	Accept
A5. Fascists and the far right weaken women’s right to self-determination and the goal of full gender equality. Tolerance of gender-based violence, restrictions on the right to free, safe and legal abortions, under-investment in quality eldercare and childcare services risk removing or reducing women’s rights and the fight for gender equality. The	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A5. Fascists and the far right weaken We note and condemn the worrying increase in attacks on fundamental rights and freedoms, particularly women’s right to self-determination and against the goal of full gender equality. Tolerance of gender-based violence, restrictions on the right to free, safe and legal abortions, underinvestment in	Accept with clarification: “We note and condemn the worrying increase in attacks on fundamental rights and freedoms, particularly against women’s rights and against the goal of full gender equality.”

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
rights of many others are under attack and it will be crucial to fight back against all forms of racism and discrimination including harassment and violence directed against refugees, migrant workers, Roma and the LGBT+ community.	quality eldercare and childcare services and underpayment in sectors that are still dominated by women, in particular eldercare and childcare services, risk removing or reducing women’s rights and the fight for gender equality. The rights of many others are under attack and it will be crucial to fight back against all forms of racism and discrimination including harassment and violence directed against refugees, migrant workers, Roma and the LGBT+ community people, and all populations stigmatised because of their disability, origin or real or supposed religion. EPSU strongly opposes all political, religious, fascist and far-right ideologies that undermine the fundamental rights, freedom and dignity of every individual.	Accept (but with change to “undervaluation of workers” instead of “underpayment”) Accept (but with deletion of phrase “real or supposed”)
A6. Achieving greater wealth and income equality between and within countries across Europe and beyond is important for long-term peace and stability. Strong, universal public services, European and national social dialogue and quality, socially useful jobs, are a motor for sustainable growth and development and key to address regional and other inequalities.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A6. Achieving greater wealth and income equality between and within countries across Europe and beyond is important for long-term peace and stability. Strong, universal public services, European and national social dialogue and quality, socially useful jobs, are a motor for sustainable growth and development and key to address regional and other forms of inequalities.	Accept

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
A7. Congress commits to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) defend trade union and human rights using European and international instruments, including the European Convention on Human Rights monitored and enforced by the European Court of Human Rights and the legal framework provided by the Council of Europe; b) strengthen democracy at work, including rights to organise, to information and consultation, collective bargaining and collective action, and for a strong and effective European and national social dialogue; c) support independent and inclusive trade unions and support coordination of solidarity among EPSU members, especially in defence of women’s rights, LGBT+ rights, trade union rights, and democracy; d) push for legal frameworks guaranteeing reproductive rights, including the right to free, safe and legal abortions for all women. e) oppose the far right and support initiatives, like the anti-fascist trade union network, to limit the far-right’s 	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A7.b) strengthen democracy at work, including rights to organise, to information and consultation, collective bargaining and collective action, including the right to strike, in accordance with Article 28 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union and for a strong and effective European and national social dialogue; A7.c) support independent and inclusive trade unions and support coordination of solidarity among EPSU members, especially in defence of democracy and of women’s rights, LGBT+ rights, trade union rights, and democracy; Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: A7.d) push for legal frameworks guaranteeing reproductive rights, including the right to free, safe and legal abortions that are free of charge for all women.	Accept as reformulated “... including the right to strike, in accordance with Article 28 of the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, the European Convention of Human Rights and Article 6 of the Social Charter of the Council of Europe” Accept (to add “and” before “trade union rights.”) Accept

Section A: Securing peace, democracy, equality, rights and freedoms	Amendments	EC recommendations
influence on working people and infiltration of trade unions; f) lobby for policies to support refugees and migrants and to defend an open Europe that provides legal pathways for migration, equal treatment for migrant workers and inclusive workplaces in all countries; g) build the EPSU EuCare network to coordinate trade union actions in defence of the rights of migrants; h) ensure migrants and mobile workers can exercise democratic rights, for example to support their right to vote in national elections under certain conditions; i) contribute to initiatives to strengthen the global and European regulatory frameworks that to defend human rights and build fairer societies; j) demand that the EU’s foreign, enlargement and neighbourhood policies give more emphasis to democracy and social and economic justice, trade union rights and collective bargaining and to addressing inequality and regional disparities.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: A7.d) push for legal frameworks guaranteeing sexual and reproductive rights, including the right to free, safe and legal abortions for all women. A7.e) oppose the far right and support initiatives, like the anti-fascist trade union network, to limit the far-right’s influence on working people and infiltration of trade unions and commit to training activists; A7.h) ensure all foreigners migrants and mobile workers can exercise democratic rights, for example to support their right to vote in national local elections under certain conditions;	Accept Accept Accept as reformulated (It is important to keep reference to national but also add regional level): “ensure migrants and mobile workers can exercise democratic rights, for example, to support their right to vote in national, regional and local elections under certain conditions”;

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
B1. EPSU defends and promotes universal and democratically-organised public services, opposes liberalisation and privatisation and works to develop alternative economic policies. Developing and extending public services is key to bringing about positive structural change, addressing inequalities in power, wealth and knowledge and achieving a just climate transition. We support a rights-based approach: the right to health, social care, education, energy, water and sanitation, housing and culture, as well as access to a safe environment and to affordable digital services enables people to realise their human rights and play a full part in society.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: B1. EPSU defends and promotes universal and democratically-organised public services, opposes liberalisation and privatisation and works to develop alternative economic policies. Developing and extending public services is key to bringing about positive structural change, addressing inequalities in power, wealth and knowledge and achieving a just climate transition. We support a rights-based approach: the right to health, social care, education, energy, water and sanitation, housing and culture, transport, as well as access to a safe environment and to affordable digital services enables people to realise their human rights and play a full part in society.	Accept
B2. Public services, particularly health and social care, were crucial to support people in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic. Public service workers did their utmost to maintain services. In many cases, the pandemic showed that countries with sufficient investment in public services came through comparatively better than countries where underinvestment and understaffing caused by austerity meant many services were at full stretch and workers stressed and overloaded. It will be a key objective to ensure that this	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: B2. Public services, particularly health and social care, were crucial to support people in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic. Public service workers did their utmost to maintain services. In many cases, the pandemic showed that countries with sufficient investment in public services came through comparatively better than countries where underinvestment and understaffing caused by austerity meant many services were at full stretch and workers stressed and overloaded. It will be a key objective to ensure that this situation is reversed and ensure that access to	Accept but does not fit here; reword and move to follow after " ... other

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
situation is reversed and that public services and the public sector will have the staffing levels and investment needed to guarantee their resilience and capacity to cope with the climate and other crises and pandemics. This means challenging the international bodies – the European institutions, International Monetary Fund and World Bank – whenever they impose austerity and undermine the financing of measures essential to social and environmental progress. Any increase in defence spending must not be at the expense of spending on public services or on measures to tackle climate change.	medicines is guaranteed without interruption of supply and without delay, and that public services and the public sector will have the staffing levels and investment needed to guarantee their resilience and capacity to cope with the climate and other crises and pandemics. This means challenging the international bodies – the European institutions, International Monetary Fund and World Bank – whenever they impose austerity and undermine the financing of measures essential to social and environmental progress. Any increase in defence spending must not be at the expense of spending on other public services or on measures to tackle climate change. B2bis The same considerations apply to the energy sector, which has once again become one of the greatest challenges facing the world. Contrary to what the advocates of liberalisation claim, it is above all the deregulation and liberalisation of the energy sector that has led us into a deep energy crisis from which we have not yet emerged. We urgently need to get energy off the market by regulating prices through public control. Our only compass must be the general interest and the response to needs, without forgetting to restore proximity with users and to lead the	crises and pandemics. It is also crucial to always guarantee access to medicines.” Accept Accept (but with editing where unclear or covered elsewhere in PoA and so revised paragraph would read: “The same considerations apply to the energy sector, where deregulation and liberalisation has led us into a deep crisis. We urgently need to remove energy from the market by regulating prices through public control. Our focus must be the general interest and the response to needs, ensuring that services are close to users and that energy is affordable. Energy is a vital commodity, and there cannot be an effective fight against climate change

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
	fight against fuel poverty. It's time to make an uncompromising assessment of the liberalisation of the European energy markets. Energy is a vital commodity, and there can be no real fight against climate change without a real social policy that makes low-CO2 technologies and products accessible to all. We need to push for an overall European vision accompanied by long-term European planning and coherence, while leaving each Member State free to choose its own low-carbon, controllable energy mix.	without a social policy that makes low-CO2 technologies and products accessible to all. We need to push for an overall European vision accompanied by long-term European planning and coherence that supports the shift to renewable energy, while leaving each Member State free to choose its own low-carbon, controllable energy mix.”)
B3. Public finance, backed by transparent and democratic processes is important to ensure the best use of resources while direct public provision is an efficient way of funding and delivering universal and high-quality public services. Fair and progressive taxation is at the heart of Welfare States. Commercialisation of public services sees resources being diverted to profits and dividends rather than the improvement of those services. Over-dependence on external consultants weakens good administration. The track record of profit-making companies providing public services is poor. Prioritising profits can put the quality of services at risk, along with the pay and

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
conditions and trade union rights of employees. It is a myth that the private sector can deliver quality services while also reducing costs.
B4. Intergenerational solidarity is deeply linked with strengthening public services. The investments made in education and social and physical infrastructures are key commitments to future generations. Quality early childhood education and care is a springboard for equal opportunities. These investments are becoming all the more important as many areas of Europe face major demographic challenges with a decline in the working age population and inadequate supply of skilled and educated workers.
B5. Protecting space for public services at national level will be important in the coming years both within and beyond the EU. In the EU specifically, there may be pressure to develop the Single Market in healthcare and education and other public services. This is despite the fact that the energy crisis has dramatically exposed the failure of liberalisation to value energy as a public good and deliver the necessary expansion of renewable energy. EPSU will oppose such a move that risks to increase the	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: B5. Protecting space for public services at national level will be important in the coming years both within and beyond the EU. In the EU specifically, there may be is pressure to develop the Single Market in healthcare and education and other public services, for which liberalisation would be contrary to the general interest and to that of the workers in these sectors. This is despite the fact that The energy crisis has dramatically exposed the failure of liberalisation to value energy as a public good and deliver the	Accept Accept Accept

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
already problematic commercialisation of these services. In the EU we can build on the citizens' panels of the Future of Europe Conference and the demands of people for more public services and social policy.	necessary expansion of renewable energy that liberalisation at European level has failed to create an environmentally-friendly energy market at a cost that is affordable for users, even though it is a strategic sector for businesses, citizens and the fight against climate change. EPSU will oppose such a move that risks to increase the already problematic commercialisation of these services any new opening up of public service markets that is contrary to the general interest and to the interests of workers in these sectors. In the EU we can build on the citizens' panels of the Future of Europe Conference and the demands of people for more public services and social policy. Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): B5. Protecting space for public services at national level will be important in the coming years both within and beyond the EU. In the EU specifically, there may be pressure to develop the Single Market in healthcare, and education, energy and other public services. This is despite the fact that the energy crisis has dramatically exposed the failure of liberalisation to value energy as a public good and deliver the necessary expansion of renewable low-carbon energy. EPSU will oppose such a move that risks to increase the	Reject deletion but accept additional text (important to highlight negative experience so far and the broader problems associated with commercialisation) Accept Accept as reformulated: "renewable and where necessary for the

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
	already problematic commercialisation of these services. In the EU we can build on the citizens’ panels of the Future of Europe Conference and the demands of people for more public services and social policy.	transition period low-carbon energy”.
B6. Congress commits to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) oppose further liberalisation of public services, including at EU level; review, challenge and reverse where feasible, the commercialisation of public services such as health, social care, water or energy; and lobby to regulate the conditions that apply to private providers including social and environmental standards; b) develop research and campaign materials showing that public services are key to address the challenge of green and digital transformations, realise human rights, address inequality and bring about structural change; to oppose commercialisation, prevent privatisation and support the return of public services to public ownership and democratic control; c) work to ensure that public authorities, employers and governments take effective action to ensure they deliver on their commitments to net-zero / carbon-neutral economies; d) press for stronger anti-poverty strategies, equality and redistribution 	Proposed amendment by Mediterranean Constituency: B6. Congress commits to a European Pact for Public Services to bring human rights, solidarity, and sustainable development back into the heart of the European project and to: Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: B6.a) oppose further liberalisation of public services, including at EU level; review, challenge and reverse where feasible, the commercialisation of public services such as health, social care, water or energy; and lobby to regulate the conditions that apply to private providers including binding social and environmental standards; Proposed amendment by French affiliates: B6.a) strengthen public services, oppose further liberalisation of public services, including at EU level; review, challenge and reverse where feasible, the commercialisation of public services such as health, social care, establishments for young children, social and medico-social establishments, water, housing or energy by implementing remunicipalisation; and lobby to regulate	Accept (with change of “Pact” to “Agenda”). Accept Accept Accept

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
of wealth through effective, fair and progressive tax systems to support peaceful, equal and cohesive societies. e) coordinate work to put wealth taxes on the agenda and seek stronger penalties, such as exclusion from state aid and public contracts, on tax evaders and those who facilitate evasion; f) in the EU, support the ETUC policy for qualified majority voting on tax matters to counter tax dumping, evasion and fraud and make it easier to agree minimum standards and favour more resources for common EU public service policies through fairer taxing of corporations and a tax on financial transactions; g) push for greater efforts to tackle poverty taking into account the disproportionate impacts on women and children and addressing the growing number of the working poor; h) promote policies to strengthen the welfare state and implement the rights set out in the European Pillar of Social Rights, including on health and social care, ‘essential’ services and fundamental rights; i) campaign to anchor the right to public services in legal frameworks,	the conditions that apply to private providers including for regulation of private service providers, particularly with regard to social and environmental standards and in controlling the use of public funds and to the quality of the services provided, as well as in sharing the value produced in a way that is favourable to employees, B6.b) develop research and campaign materials showing that public services are key to address the challenge of green environmentally-friendly and digital transformations, realise human rights, address inequality and bring about structural change; to oppose commercialisation, prevent privatisation and support the return of public services to public ownership and democratic control; B6.c) work to ensure that public authorities, employers and governments take effective action to ensure they deliver on their commitments to net-zero / carbon-neutral and environmentally-friendly economies; B6.e) coordinate work to put contribute to getting wealth taxes on the political agenda and seek stronger penalties, such as exclusion from state aid and public contracts, on tax evaders and those who facilitate evasion; as well as combating the offshoring of profits and intangible assets to avoid taxation,	Accept Accept (with rewording and as new bis: “Sharing the value produced in a way that is favourable to workers.”) Reject (Keep “green” throughout PoA) Accept Accept Accept

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
including the right to water and sanitation, energy, health and care, education, housing, good administration, communications and public transport, among others; j) ensure that public contracts are not based on lowest-price / standards and should only be awarded to contractors that negotiate decent collective agreements, pay their fair share of taxes and meet high social and environmental requirements; k) defend direct public provision of services and seek to regulate and reduce the reliance by governments on private consultants; l) supports policies that reduce the for-profit sector in public services and encourage alternatives to commercialisation across the whole economy. m) engage in discussions on EU Treaty changes, notably on macro-economic policy, public finance, taxation and healthcare to secure support for public spending and investment in quality public services and oppose any austerity policies; n) strengthen cooperation on public service issues with other trade unions, civil society, professional	B6.f) in the EU, support the ETUC policy at EU level for qualified majority voting on tax matters to counter tax dumping, evasion and fraud and make it easier to agree minimum standards and favour more resources for common EU public service policies through fairer taxing of corporations and a tax on financial transactions; B6.g) push for greater efforts to tackle poverty taking into account the disproportionate impacts on women and children and vulnerable persons and addressing the growing number of the working poor; B6.j) ensure that public contracts are not based on lowest-price / standards and should only be awarded to contractors that negotiate high-level decent collective agreements, pay their fair share of taxes and meet high social and environmental requirements; B6.k) defend direct public provision of services and seek to regulate and reduce the reliance by governments on private consultants; B6.k bis) control the use of stimulus packages, B6.m) engage in discussions on EU Treaty changes, notably on macro-economic policy, public finance, taxation and healthcare to secure support for public spending and investment in quality public services and oppose any austerity policies, particularly those that provide for pay cuts in the public sector and reductions in social benefits,	Accept Accept Accept (but change “high-level” to “good quality”) Accept idea but reformulate amendment (to clarify “ensure that the grants and loans that are supporting economy recovery are properly monitored and that any support for the private sector is on the basis of meeting clear social and environmental conditionalities”) Accept (but change “particularly those that” to “especially where they lead to”)

Section B: Reclaiming and strengthening public services	Amendments	EC recommendations
organisations, political groups, researchers and others; o) contribute to PSI public service campaigns, including the Future is Public global manifesto for public services; p) give visibility to the value of public services for people and ensure demands for quality public services are mainstreamed in strategies to advance workers’ rights, decent work and gender equality; and q) protect public services against any attempt to (re)impose austerity measures and ensure that the new economic governance policies in the EU are public-service friendly, including through the introduction of a ‘golden rule’ for public investment.	B6.m bis) demand transparent European economic governance that generates full employment, includes environmental constraints and improves working and living conditions. European budgetary dogmas must under no circumstances prevent the investment needed to achieve this. EPSU supports the ETUC in its demands on the economic governance of the EU. It demands that the social partners be consulted at the various stages of the European budgetary procedures (the “European semester”) and that they be authorised to submit proposals during the country-specific recommendations. Proposed amendment by Mediterranean Constituency: B6.i) campaign to anchor the right to public services in legal frameworks that set minimum common standards for services, salaries and rights, including the right to water and sanitation, energy, health and care, education, housing, good administration, communications and public transport, among others;	Accept (with two changes to the text – “...European budgetary dogmas must under no circumstances prevent the investment needed to achieve this nor impose rules that would lead to too rapid or too sharp reductions in debt levels.” And change “budgetary procedures” to “economic and social policy coordination”). Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): replace “green transition” with “ ecological transition ” and do so throughout the document	Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA)
C1. Tackling the climate crisis Our economic system drives the climate crisis and environmental degradation. Commitments to reduce global warming and to protect biodiversity remain far from the agreed targets and add to the argument that a fundamental shift is required from an economy fixated on profit-maximisation and growth as measured by GDP to one focusing on low-carbon industry and services, well-being and equity. It is not acceptable that the current system encourages speculation that results in the benefits of economic activity being privatised while the losses are socialised. Tackling climate and social injustice must be the two overarching objectives of our economic model.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C1. Tackling the climate and environment crisis Our economic system drives the climate crisis and environmental degradation. Commitments to reduce global warming and to protect biodiversity remain far from the agreed targets and add to the argument that a fundamental shift is required from an economy fixated on profit-maximisation based on over-consumption and all too often driven by short-term private interests. We need to turn the page on growth as measured by GDP to one focusing on low-carbon industry and services, well-being and equity. It is not acceptable that the current system encourages speculation that results in the benefits of economic activity being privatised while the losses are socialised. Tackling climate and social injustice Responding to the environmental crisis and combatting social and climate injustices must be the two overarching objectives of our economic model.	Accept Accept Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
C2. Public services are a central and important part of the solution to meeting the challenges of the transition to a green and digital economy in a fair and sustainable way. Addressing the climate crisis effectively poses additional challenges for public services that they must be equipped to deal with. Weak public services make it difficult to allocate scarce resources efficiently and fairly, as we saw during the COVID-19 pandemic. Strengthening public services is vital to support the transformation of all sectors, ensure that quality green jobs are created and that there is the necessary investment in skills and training. Privatisation and cuts to public services have the opposite effect and also hit women harder, widening inequalities between men and women. Given the increasing environmental challenges, governments must invest in public services to both mitigate and adapt to climate change, and to finance the necessary measures including renewable energy. A fair tax policy with higher taxation on the wealthy, on securities and foreign exchange transactions, and on companies is an important basis for this.	Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency: C2. Strengthening public services and ensuring sufficient funding is vital to support the transformation of all sectors, ensure that quality green jobs are created and that there is the necessary investment in skills and training. Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C2. Public services are a central and important part of the solution to meeting the challenges of the transition to a green and digital economy in a fair and sustainable way. Addressing the climate crisis effectively poses additional challenges for public services that they must be equipped to deal with. Weak public services make it difficult to allocate scarce resources efficiently and fairly, as we saw during the COVID-19 pandemic. Strengthening public services is vital to support the transformation of all sectors, ensure that quality green low-carbon jobs are created and that there is the necessary investment in skills and training. Privatisation and cuts to public services have the opposite effect and also hit women harder, widening inequalities between men and women. Given the increasing environmental challenges, governments must invest in public services to both mitigate and adapt to climate change, and to finance the necessary measures including renewable energy. A fair tax policy with higher taxation on the wealthy, on	Accept Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA)

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
	securities and foreign exchange transactions, and on companies is an important basis for this. Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT: C2. Public services are a central and important part of the solution to meeting the challenges of the transition to an environmentally responsible green and digital economy in a fair and sustainable way. Addressing the climate crisis effectively poses additional challenges for public services that they must be equipped to deal with. Weak public services make it difficult to allocate scarce resources efficiently and fairly, as we saw during the COVID-19 pandemic. Strengthening public services is vital to support the transformation of all sectors, ensure that quality green carbon-neutral jobs are created and that there is the necessary investment in skills and training. Privatisation and cuts to public services have the opposite effect and also hit women harder, widening inequalities between men and women. Given the increasing environmental challenges, governments must invest financially and humanely in public services to both mitigate and adapt to climate change and to finance the necessary measures including renewable energy low carbon energies and thermal renovation. A fair tax policy with higher taxation on the wealthy, on securities and foreign exchange transactions, and on	Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA) Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA) Accept (with change: “invest both financial and human resources in public services...”) Reject change to “low-carbon” but keep last part, but reworded: “renewable energy and energy efficient renovation of buildings”

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
	companies and the fight against tax evasion is an important basis for this.	Accept
C3. Changing the economic model will be increasingly important to tackle speculation that leads to volatile and high prices. We have seen this recently in the energy sector but it is also a growing problem in food production, as well as in land use and water resources.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C3. Changing the economic model will be increasingly important to tackle speculation, high-frequency trading , that leads to volatile and high prices. We have seen this recently in the energy sector but it is also a growing problem in food production, as well as in land use and water and sanitation resources.	Accept Accept
C4. Trade unions have a key role to play in promoting a future 'beyond growth' in support of less, or more differentiated growth. As political actors representing the interests of working people unions need to engage in the debates about how to deliver a fair and green transition that protects everyone and leaves no one behind. This requires a rebalancing of our economy towards socially and ecologically useful activities.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C4. Trade unions have a key role to play in promoting a future 'beyond growth' in support of less, or more differentiated, fair and sustainable growth . As political actors representing the interests of working people unions need to engage in the debates about how to deliver a fair and green ecological transition that protects everyone and leaves no one behind. This requires a rebalancing of our economy towards socially and ecologically useful activities.	Accept Reject (retain "green" throughout PoA)
C5. Congress commits to: a) strengthen union work to mitigate and adapt to the climate crisis and protect bio-diversity and prevent the further destruction of our environment;	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C5.b) support the expansion of renewable low-carbon energy in a spirit of technological neutrality to ensure a fair and just transition;	Accept as reformulated: support the expansion of renewable, and where necessary for the transition period, low-carbon energy to ensure a planned , fair and just transition.

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
b) support the expansion of renewable energy to ensure a fair and just transition; c) contribute to reflections on how the economy can be orientated more towards meeting human needs, supporting well-being and socially and ecologically useful goods and services; d) continue to press for alternative economic models that respect people and the planet; that support public provision and ownership of essential goods and services and encourage remunicipalisation; e) ensure that the climate crisis is mainstreamed into sectoral work and work on gender equality and co-operate with EU sectoral employers to address the implications of the climate crisis and the measures necessary to protect public services and public service workers; f) press for more initiatives in terms of skills, education, training and life-long learning that are necessary for a just transition and the restructuring of our economies; g) continue to develop strategies to tackle low pay and secure regular and good quality employment in so-	C5.d) continue to press for alternative economic models that respect people and the planet; that support public provision and ownership of essential goods and services and encourage remunicipalisation as well as a return to public management when it is in the public interest. Energy choices must therefore favour technologies with value chains within the European Union and skilled jobs. C5.d bis) EPSU warns against policies in the energy sector which lead to public services being replaced by private actors, sometimes from outside the EU, who are less socially demanding for workers, Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): C5.e) ensure that the climate crisis is mainstreamed into sectoral work and work on gender equality and co-operate negotiate with EU sectoral employers to address the implications of the climate crisis and the measures necessary to protect public services and public service workers; Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C5.f) press for more initiatives in terms of skills qualifications, education, training and life-long learning that are necessary for a just transition and the restructuring of our economies;	Reject (already covered elsewhere and not appropriate to exclude non-EU companies) Reject Accept Reject deletion but Add “qualifications” (and refer to both “skills, qualifications...”)

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
called ‘low skilled’ sectors that are vital for a just transition; and h) support initiatives to strengthen unions’ capacity to address climate and environmental concerns not least in collective bargaining to support a fair transition.	C5.g) continue to develop strategies to tackle low pay and secure regular and good quality employment in so-called ‘low skilled’ sectors that are vital for a just transition respecting trade unions and human rights: no job can be “green” if it is not of high quality. C5.g Bis:Require the conditionality of public aid to encourage companies to commit to better environmental and social practices. Proposed by the Nordic Constituency, add new point 5 i): C5.i) establish together with PSI a “collective bargaining hub for just transition” to be used by affiliates as an online resource to share collective bargaining developments.	Accept Accept (but with “encourage” changed to “ensure” and “commit” to “adhere”) Accept (with addition of “and other organisations” after PSI)
C6. A socially just transition for all public service workers Climate change is posing new challenges for many public services. The measures to be taken to adapt to the climate crisis and achieve the energy transition will have an impact on resources and staffing levels and may lead to major shifts in some sectors as measures are taken to mitigate or adapt to global warming. EPSU and affiliates need to be fully involved in the consultations and negotiations that aim to ensure that all workers are treated	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C6. A socially just transition for all public service workers Climate change is posing new challenges for many public services. The measures to be taken to adapt to the climate crisis and achieve the energy transition will have an impact on resources and staffing levels and may lead to major shifts in some sectors as measures are taken to mitigate or adapt to global warming climate change. EPSU and affiliates need to be fully involved in the consultations and negotiations that aim to	Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
fairly in this transition. EPSU will work with affiliates to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) track, monitor and help shape the impact of the climate crisis and energy transition on public service jobs and working conditions in each of EPSU’s sectors; b) achieve fair and secure pay and conditions for employees affected by the changes in energy supply resulting from the energy transition; c) put pressure on governments and employers to take responsibility for achieving the commitments in the Paris+ climate change agreements; d) work to ensure that workers don’t bear the brunt of the impact of the green transition; e) exchange on measures that can be taken in negotiations with employers to protect workers and provide them with the necessary skills through training and education; f) research and analyse how to adapt the world of work to the climate crisis and its effects on different groups workers, such as those working outside, older workers, those with health problems and those in workplaces without air conditioning; 	ensure that all workers are treated fairly in this transition. EPSU will work with affiliates to: Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): C6.d) work to ensure that workers don’t bear the brunt of the impact of the green ecological transition; Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C6.d) work to ensure that workers don’t bear the brunt of the impact of the green transition promote a sustainable future with high employment rates, through active employment policies and training programmes for new skills to support workers during the transition, Proposed by the Nordic Constituency: C6.e) exchange on measures that can be taken in negotiations with employers to protect workers and provide them with the necessary skills through training and education, and to ensure that workers themselves are involved in the planning of these transition process;	Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA) Accept Accept as reformulated: and to ensure that workers themselves and their representatives are involved in the planning of these transition process

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
g) research and analyse how new approaches to working time and workplace design are part of the response to the climate crisis; and h) call for measures to cushion the effects of job losses on workers and facilitate their re-entry into the world of work while preparing for the potential impact of increasing climate migration on the labour market.
C7. Getting the best from digitalising public services The digitalisation of many public services has helped make them more easily and widely accessible. However, this development comes with additional challenges. Many citizens, for example those of older generations or living in low-income households still lack the skills and equipment necessary to use online services while the dominance of large technology companies in computer and information technology poses a threat to public provision. Workers and their trade unions have to be part of the debate on the direction of digitalisation and actively shape this process. The uneven distribution of digital infrastructures increases inequalities between countries and between urban and rural communities.	Proposed amendment by German-speaking Constituency, insert new sentence: C7. [...] Workers and their trade unions have to be part of the debate on the direction of digitalisation and actively shape this process. Both the aspect of gender-equitable digitisation and the need for barrier free access must be taken into account. The uneven distribution of digital infrastructures increases inequalities between countries and between urban and rural communities. Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): C7. The rapid development of artificial intelligence (AI) will lead to change in society as a whole and in the world of work in particular. AI tools may simplify work in many areas but may also replace workers and are already creating dangers of automated discriminatory hire and fire practices but also random checks on users and workers with data storage in	Accept Accept (but with deletion of phrase “with data storage in contravention of

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
Digitalisation will have profound changes in the labour market, leading to many jobs being destroyed and many new ones created. In response, it is essential that measures are taken at the earliest opportunity that provide job guarantees, training and retraining programmes. The rapid development of artificial intelligence (AI) will lead to change in society as a whole and in the world of work in particular. AI tools may simplify work in many areas but may also replace workers and are already creating dangers of automated discriminatory hire and fire practices. Measures are needed to ensure no harm to people or the environment.	contravention of GDPR law. Measures are needed to ensure no harm to people or the environment.	GDPR law” as this is not specific to AI and covered elsewhere)
C8. Congress therefore calls for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) The direct involvement of workers and their trade unions in shaping and implementing digitalisation strategies to ensure that digitalisation processes bring tangible benefits to citizens and workers, including to help address the climate crisis, restore environmental degradation and enable the energy transition; b) continuing action to guarantee the provision of quality public services to all citizens and ensure non-digital 	Proposed by the Nordic Constituency, amendment to C8.c): C8.c) measures to increase political governance and control over digitalisation. This requires measures to increase the staffing, skills and resources of inhouse IT services supporting and providing digital infrastructures and services, in order to make the public sector digital infrastructure stronger and more independent and also strengthen the position of citizens and workers.	Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
and face-to-face access where appropriate; c) measures to reduce the dominance of large IT companies in the provision of online public services, including steps to increase the staffing, skills and resources of inhouse IT services and the promotion of public provision including cloud services and other public digital infrastructure and services; d) the development of digital infrastructure to address inequalities between countries and within countries; and e) further regulation and control of private sector access to and use of citizens' data across the public services. We support strong implementation of European and national legislation on data security and reject the commercialisation of data gained through public services like health, utilities and public administration.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C8.b) continuing action to guarantee the provision of quality public services accessible to all citizens with support where necessary and ensure guaranteed minimum non-digital and face-to-face access where appropriate; C8.e) further regulation and control of private sector access to and use of citizens' data across the public services. We support strong implementation of European and national legislation on data security and reject the commercialisation of data gained through public services like health, social and medico-social services, utilities and public administration.	Accept (but without deletion of "quality") Accept
C9. Digitalisation, telework, mobile work and the right to disconnect The agreements on digitalisation at cross-sector level and in Central Government Administrations and the cross-sector agreement on telework and	Proposed amendment by CRC: C9. Digitalisation, telework, mobile work and the right to disconnect The agreements on digitalisation at cross-sector level and in Central Government Administration and the cross-sector	Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
the right to disconnect provide important new possibilities to drive the digitalisation agenda at the workplace. Telework and mobile work can deliver flexibility for workers but raise major issues in relation to workloads and work intensification, leading to workers being cut off from the workplace and to reductions in the quality and quantity of workplace provision. For these reasons, telework and mobile work must never be imposed unilaterally by employers. Employers must fulfil their responsibilities and duty of care, for example by maintaining inclusive office spaces and not pushing workers into telework. EPSU will work with affiliates to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> fully implement the agreements/directives on digitalisation and telework at national level and seek to extend such agreements across all EPSU sectors; continue to monitor and publicise collective bargaining developments relevant to digitalisation and feed into PSI's collective bargaining hub; seek to get the best out of digitalisation for public service workers and ensure that it is not used to undermine and dehumanise 	agreement on telework and the right to disconnect provides important new possibilities to drive the digitalisation agenda at the workplace. Telework and mobile work can deliver flexibility for workers but raise major issues in relation to workloads and work intensification, leading to workers being cut off from the workplace and to reductions in the quality and quantity of workplace provision. For these reasons, telework and mobile work must never be imposed unilaterally by employers. Employers must fulfil their responsibilities and duty of care, for example by maintaining inclusive office spaces and not pushing workers into telework. EPSU will work with affiliates to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> fully implement the Central Government Administration (CGA) agreements/directives on digitalisation and telework at national level and seek to extend such agreements across all EPSU sectors; Proposed amendment by French affiliates: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> seek to get the best out of digitalisation, which must not be seen solely as a means of cutting costs for public services, workers and ensure that work remains decent, humane, without isolating workers and or increasing work 	Accept Accept

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
decent work, to isolate workers, and increase work intensity, or introduced primarily as a cost-cutting exercise; d) press for any productivity gains from digitalisation to be shared with workers and citizens.	intensity. and introduced primarily as a cost-cutting exercise; C9.d) press for any productivity gains from digitalisation to be shared with workers and citizens by aiming to reduce working hours and improve public services, and that the added value also translates into improved pay.	Accept (with change of “added value” into “benefits”)
C10. Training, lifelong learning and continuous professional development The rapid uptake of digitalisation across public services and other new ways of working highlight the importance of vocational training, lifelong learning and continuous professional development for all public service workers as they seek to improve their quality of employment and career development. EPSU is working to address these issues across its sectors and will aim to: a) ensure employers meet their responsibility to invest in quality training, education and professional development for all workers; b) negotiate at the appropriate level to ensure access to training for all workers, paid for by employers and counted as working time, and particularly targeting those groups who may face barriers to acquiring the training that they need;

Section C: Fighting for a green, digital and socially just transition	Amendments	EC recommendations
c) press for a gender-responsive approach that supports women in accessing quality and inclusive training, upskilling and reskilling programmes, that validates their skills and competences, and that also facilitates access to guidance and counselling; d) highlight the importance of good quality training provision in supporting decent work and helping public service workers improve their potential. e) Negotiate training and employment guarantees within the framework of the digital and green transitions.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: C10.d) highlight the importance of good quality training provision in supporting decent work and helping public service workers improve their skills potential. Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): C10.e) Negotiate training and employment guarantees within the framework of the digital and green environmental transitions.	Accept (and add “qualifications” in line with earlier amendment) Reject (retain “green” throughout PoA)

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
D1. Quality employment and quality public services go hand-in-hand. Strong and influential trade unions and good collective bargaining and social dialogue structures can deliver good pay and pension provision, employment security, health and safety and a range of other positive benefits. In many cases, public service trade unions have taken the lead in negotiating to ensure equal treatment and tackle discrimination. However, in some countries public service trade unions are denied their full rights to freedom of association, to information and consultation, to negotiate and take collective action, limiting their ability to achieve decent employment and working conditions.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D1. Quality employment and quality public services go hand-in-hand. Strong and influential trade unions and good collective bargaining and social dialogue structures can deliver good pay and pension provision, employment security, health and safety and a range of other positive benefits. In many cases, public service trade unions have taken the lead in negotiating to ensure equal treatment and tackle discrimination. However, in some countries public service trade unions are denied their full rights to freedom of association, to information and consultation, their right to expression, to negotiate and take collective action and their right to strike, limiting their ability to achieve decent employment and working conditions.	Accept (but amend to “right to freedom of expression”) Accept (but amend to “including their right to strike”)
D2. EPSU affiliates need the means to negotiate effectively to defend and improve public service workers’ pay and conditions. Extending and strengthening collective bargaining in the next Congress period is vital in order to deliver for all workers across our sectors.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D2. EPSU affiliates need the means to negotiate effectively to defend and improve public service workers’ pay and conditions combating job insecurity. Extending and strengthening collective bargaining in the next Congress period is vital in order to deliver for all workers across our sectors.	Accept
D3. Defending and strengthening workers’ and trade union rights The basic rights to organise, to information and consultation, to negotiate and take collective action must be strenuously defended and asserted	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D3. Defending and strengthening workers’ and trade union rights The basic rights to organise, to information and consultation, to negotiate and take collective action, including the right to	Accept

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
right across Europe. EPSU should seek to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) develop its dialogue with the Council of Europe’s European Committee for Social Rights, including in support of the ratification of the addition Protocol on Collective Complaints; b) continue to highlight attacks on trade union rights in the public services and work with PSI to expose such violations in the ILO; c) challenge any attempt to deny or limit the application of EU or national social legislation to public service workers and specifically to prevent or reverse any exclusion from being applied in the implementation of the EU Transparent and Predictable Working Conditions (TPWC) Directive; d) work to defend and strengthen the right to strike in the public services and maintain the co-operation with the European Trade Union Institute (ETUI) to provide information on the situation in all EPSU countries; e) further explore the scope to extend the ratification across Europe of the International Labour Organisation conventions on collective bargaining (154) and labour relations in public services (151); and 	strike, must be strenuously defended and asserted right across Europe. EPSU should seek to: Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): D3.b) continue to highlight attacks on trade union rights in the public services and work with PSI to expose such violations in the ILO; and to fight against the criminalisation and repression of trade unions in many European countries and around the world,	Accept

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
f) ensure the implementation of procurement rules that require private contractors to comply with clauses on collective agreements and other social and environmental issues.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates, new point D3.g): D3.g) contribute to ETUC lobbying on EU legislation and economic policies	Accept (with change: “with ETUC to”)
D4. Collective bargaining for all public service workers Extending and strengthening collective bargaining, particularly sector-level bargaining across all public services whether directly provided or contracted-out to the private profit and non-profit sectors, is crucial. The 2022 EU Directive on Adequate Minimum Wages provides important new rights for trade unions in the European Union that can also be applied in candidate countries and set an example for other European countries. EPSU will work with affiliates to: a) take full advantage of the new rights enshrined in the Adequate Minimum Wages Directive and explore how these can be extended to countries outside the European Union; b) ensure that public service trade unions are included in the national action plans to strengthen collective bargaining that are obligatory in	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D4.b) bis: bring European sectoral social dialogue to life with the aim of achieving progress for workers	Accept (with rewording “Reactivate European sectoral social dialogue with

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
countries where collective bargaining coverage is below 80%; and c) develop specific campaigns to strengthen and extend collective agreements in sectors with low coverage. d) provide training and support on bargaining for equality, with the strong involvement of women negotiators;	Proposed amendment by French affiliates, new point D4.e): D4.e) defend and improve specific civil service statutes and legislation in countries where they exist.	aim of achieving progress for workers.”) Accept
D5. Delivering fair and equitable pay The sharp rise in inflation in 2022-23 posed a major challenge for trade unions across Europe in their negotiations to defend workers’ pay and purchasing power. It also exposed how many public service workers had seen real pay eroded over an extended period, often as a legacy of austerity. Public service workers, particularly those in health and social care but also many other groups, deserve recognition for the massive efforts made during the pandemic to maintain and deliver services to protect people. EPSU will: a) continue to support affiliates in their negotiations, protests and industrial action to achieve fair pay for public service workers, particularly those initiatives that target the lower paid and workers in undervalued jobs;

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> b) encourage affiliated unions to provide practical solidarity and be present in each other’s actions. c) ensure that public sector pay does not fall behind the private sector; d) develop strong actions to close the gender pay gap and support equal pay for work of equal value between men and women; e) address any other form of discriminatory pay, inter alia linked to age, ethnicity, origin, nationality, gender identity, sexual orientation, religion or location.
D6. Improving working time and work-life balance arrangements EPSU has continued to participate in debates about working time and work organisation and how to ensure public service workers have access to working time arrangements that can guarantee a decent level of income along with the flexibility to provide a positive work-life balance. The four-day week campaign has helped renew the debate across Europe about a shorter working week. EPSU will work with affiliates to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) explore the various options to reduce working time without loss of pay and actively support initiatives to achieve this; b) deliver better work-life balance; 	Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): D6.b) deliver better work-life balance and promote agreements on the right to disconnect,	Accept (but as new point and rephrase: “promote agreements that ensure workers can exercise their right to disconnect.”)

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
c) help ensure fair and equitable working time arrangements for all workers across their working lives; and d) advocate for right for trade union to negotiate pension changes.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D6.d) advocate for right for trade union to negotiate pension systems.	Accept (but add at end “and changes to them”)
D7. Achieving safe and effective staffing levels Many public service workers face pressures to work overtime and additional shifts, leading to excessive hours that pose a threat to health and safety. Urgent action is needed to address this problem which is most often related to staffing shortages exacerbated by austerity and that are having a massive impact on many public services across Europe. These staff shortages are not only a problem for workers facing stress and burnout but also pose a threat to the level and quality of services, as workers leave highly stressful jobs and so posing further challenges to maintain services. The COVID-19 pandemic exposed the scale of staff shortages and the 2022 revision of the Framework of Action on Recruitment and Retention by EPSU and the HOSPEEM hospital employers’ organisation is a good example of how to respond. EPSU will continue to:	Proposed by the Nordic Constituency, insert new sentence paragraph 7: D7. Many public service workers face pressures to work overtime and additional shifts, leading to excessive hours that pose a threat to health and safety. Urgent action is needed to address this problem which is most often related to staffing shortages exacerbated by austerity and that are having a massive impact on many public services across Europe. These staff shortages are not only a problem for workers facing stress and burnout but also pose a threat to the level and quality of services, as workers leave highly stressful jobs and so posing further challenges to maintain services. The problems related to the recruitment and retention of staff specially concern the social and health sector. The availability of social and healthcare services is also the basis for the functioning of our societies and for example workers’ ability to work. Therefore, the problems in the sector affects everyone not only those working in this sector. The COVID-19 pandemic exposed the scale of staff shortages and the 2022 revision of the Framework of Action on Recruitment and	Accept (but with editing till end: “The COVID-19 pandemic particularly exposed the scale of staff shortages and problems related to the recruitment and retention of staff in health and social care. The availability of social and healthcare services is also the basis for the functioning of our societies and for example workers’ ability to work. Therefore, the problems in the sector affects everyone not only”)

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
a) expose the extent of staffing shortages in public services across Europe and their impact on workers and services; b) campaign for action to address the problem through the increased recruitment and retention of staff, with the focus on the improvement of pay and conditions through good collective agreements and the strengthening of health and safety protection; and c) ensure that the recruitment of migrant workers in public services takes into account ethical concerns and gives a say to trade unions; d) advocate for an increase in direct public sector employment, not least in the health and social care sector.	Retention by EPSU and the HOSPEEM hospital employers' organisation is a good example of how to respond. Proposed amendments by French affiliates: D7.a) expose the extent of staffing shortages in public services across Europe and their impact on workers and services; by defining staffing standards and quotas in public services, particularly in the care sector, support for vulnerable people, and those faced with managing health and human resources emergencies, D7.b) campaign for action to address the problem through the increased recruitment and retention of staff, with the focus on the improvement of pay and conditions through good collective agreements and the strengthening of health and safety protection. This objective requires resources in terms of staff, equipment and materials, as well as the involvement of professionals in decisions affecting their work, D7.d) advocate for an increase in all public services of direct employment, not least in the health and social care sector in particular by negotiating agreements on this point in the European sectoral social dialogue committees.	those working in this sector. The 2022 revision of the Framework of Action on Recruitment and Retention by EPSU and the HOSPEEM hospital employers' organisation is a good example of how to respond. Accept (with change of “standards” to “levels”) Accept Accept

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
D8. Tackling inequality and discrimination The 2023 EU Pay Transparency Directive marked an important step forward in the fight for pay equality between men and women. This has long been a major concern for EPSU along with supporting collective negotiations and legislation that address any kinds of inequality at work and, in particular, the undervaluation of jobs in women-dominated sectors. There are many other forms of inequality and discrimination that must be addressed and public service trade unions should be ready to take action to face up to racism and xenophobia and defend LGBT+ workers, Roma, migrant workers and others vulnerable to unfair treatment, harassment and violence. EPSU will work with affiliates to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) ensure effective implementation and enforcement of EU and national legislation in the fight against inequality and discrimination at work that impacts pay, pensions and other employment conditions; b) monitor, support and report on trade union successes in negotiating agreements that address any forms of inequality or discrimination in pay and other conditions;

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
c) continue to press for the implementation of the principle of equal pay for work of equal value, including in relation to the gender pay gap and d) work to ensure that all countries in the EPSU region ratify and fully implement the Istanbul Convention.	Proposed by the German-speaking Constituency: D8.c) continue to press for the implementation of the principle of equal pay for work of equal value, including in relation to the gender pay gap as well as equal pay at the same workplace and	Accept as new bullet point and clarify: “Ensure that pay and working conditions reflect the standards that apply where work is carried out.”
D9. Health and safety Public service workers face many physical and psycho-social risks and EPSU has been very active in campaigns and lobbying to improve health and safety legislation in key areas such as the regulation on the use of and exposure to asbestos and action in relation to workplace cancers, provision of protection from hazardous drugs as well as from psychosocial risks and getting Covid-19 recognised as an occupation disease for health and care workers and possibly other affected workers in the EU. We have worked with employers and other federations to address the increasing extent of third-party violence. EPSU and its affiliates will continue to: a) fight for better European and national legislation to improve health and safety and provide improved protection, and support stronger powers for labour inspectorates;	Proposed amendment by FNME-CGT (France): D9.a) fight for better European and national legislation to improve health and safety and provide improved protection, and support stronger powers for labour inspectorates, to demand more labour inspectors and to	Accept

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
b) exchange information on national initiatives – legislative or negotiated – that provide new solutions for health and safety problems; c) press for preventive measures to counteract increasing psycho-socio risks and be actively involved in the campaign to develop a directive on psychosocial risks; d) explore how to address the loopholes in the EU legislation on musculoskeletal disorders (MSD) or develop a dedicated directive related to MSDs; and e) tackle violence and harassment, including third-party violence that is often related to employers’ failure to adopt effective prevention measures as well as to staff shortages.	draw up agreements on health and safety, Amendment from the CRC: D9.bis Pensions are a key element of both social protection systems and the pay-related benefits provided by employers. In both cases, funding by the State and by employers has been under threat in many countries, with individual workers increasingly bearing the burden of ensuring a decent income in retirement. A combination of reduced pension levels, increased retirement ages and longer contribution periods have often led to more structural inequalities, penalising women in particular and those with interrupted careers.	Accept (This amendment is a partial response to the resolution submitted by CGT-SP France)

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
	For EPSU, a strong first pillar of secure, State-funded pensions is the basis for an effective pensions systems based on solidarity between the generations and an equitable share of societal wealth. Congress agrees to: a)Strengthen the first pillar of pensions systems and ensure adequate and secure funding; b)Support efforts to ensure that pensions systems deliver incomes that allow pensioners to live comfortably and with dignity; c)Demand that unions have the right to negotiate pensions systems and schemes and any changes to these; and d)Push for action to address the gender pensions gap and other forms of discrimination in pensions systems.
D10. Ensuring a strong and effective social dialogue The European institutions indicated their support for European and national social dialogue in their backing for the 2023 Communication and Recommendation. However, for these to make a real difference in practice, EPSU needs to work with the ETUC, other federations and national affiliates to:	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D10. Fighting for Ensuring a strong and effective social dialogue The European institutions indicated their support for European and national social dialogue in their backing for the 2023 Communication and Recommendation. However, the European Commission's desire to cut costs by reducing the number of meetings or by encouraging hybrid or video meetings, and its	Accept Accept (but edit just to be less specific about cost-cutting and so delete “by reducing the number of meetings or by encouraging hybrid or video meetings”)

Section D: Quality jobs make for quality services	Amendments	EC recommendations
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) put pressure on the European Commission to clarify the rules on social partner agreements, with clear criteria that encourages social partners to negotiate; b) ensure that the European Commission delivers the level of funding needed for an effective European social dialogue as required by the EU Treaties; c) engage with the European institutions in ensuring that social dialogue is strengthened and promoted right across Europe, particularly in those countries where it is weak and/or under attack; d) continue to deepen social dialogue in EPSU sectors and link EU social dialogue with national collective bargaining; and e) continue to develop its company work, including in European works councils. 	tendency to consider the European social partners as mere project promoters, is leading to a weakening of sectoral social dialogue. However, for these To bring about a real difference in practice, EPSU needs to work with the ETUC, other federations and national affiliates Proposed amendment by French affiliates: D10.e) continue to develop its company work, including in European works councils by supporting the revision of the directive on legally binding content that guarantees access to justice for Special Negotiating Bodies (SNBs) and European Works Councils (EWCs) and the introduction of dissuasive sanctions for companies that fail to meet their obligations.	Accept (but with editing to clarify: “by supporting the revision of the directive so that it provides legally binding guarantees for special negotiating bodies and European works councils to have access to justice and ensure that companies face dissuasive sanctions if they fail to meet their obligations.”)

Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Amendments	EC recommendations
E1. Trade unions can be more effective and successful in their negotiations and campaigning where they are independent, have an active and engaged membership, adequate financial resources, high union density and/or the broad support of workers. Many unions have been trying to address the decline in trade union membership but there is still a lot to do to stop and reverse the negative trends of recent years and particularly to boost the number of young members.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: E1. Trade unions can be more effective and successful in their negotiations and campaigning where they are independent, have an active and engaged membership, adequate financial resources, high union density and/or the broad support of workers. Many unions have been trying to address the decline in trade union membership but there is still a lot to do to stop and reverse the negative trends of recent years and particularly to boost the number of young members and retain our existing base. It has to be said that, despite all the lip service paid to the importance of the trade union role, European and national policies and legislation are helping to undermine this trade union strength. We are even witnessing a worrying rise in trade union repression.	Accept (but with editing to read: “and retain our existing base. In some countries we are however witnessing a worrying rise in trade union repression. Supportive national and European legislative frameworks are needed to underpin trade union action.”
E2. The challenge involves a broader need for renewal at all levels of the trade union movement, including new and innovative approaches to organising, to the relationship with members and non-members, and to union structures. It also may require working with other trade unions – or at least not actively working against them - when there are many unions active in the same sector. Investment in digital technologies is

Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Amendments	EC recommendations
important – from membership databases to communications with members and potential members.
E3. EPSU has been developing its work on recruitment and organising (R&O) since 2015 and major progress was made in 2019 with the setting up of the R&O team. The team is taking a structured approach to its work in support of affiliates, primarily those in Central and Eastern Europe, with the focus on encouraging and helping them draft and implement their own R&O strategies. It is vital that this approach is maintained and strengthened over the coming Congress period.
E4. Mobile (EU) and migrant workers are an essential part of the public service workforce in many countries. Their contribution needs to be recognised and valued. Unions must ensure non-discrimination and equal treatment of all workers and adapt their organising and recruitment strategies in light of the changing composition of the workforce.
E5. EPSU’s work in the sectors, with employers, with ETUC and PSI, with broader movements includes a strong focus on communication, lobbying and campaigning on our common agenda.	Proposed amendment by French affiliates: E5. EPSU’s work in the sectors, with employers, with ETUC and PSI, with broader movements includes a strong focus on communication, lobbying and campaigning on our common

Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Amendments	EC recommendations
We seek to build worker power through engagement and co-operation at all levels. New tools can support our work, with coordinated actions around photo campaigns, petitions, virtual public meetings and other initiatives that can complement more traditional methods. Stronger pan-European actions will be needed to counter a return to nationalism, sectionalism or an increase in divergence between and within countries.	agenda. We seek to build worker power through engagement and co-operation at all levels. New tools can support our work, with coordinated actions around photo campaigns, petitions, virtual public meetings, Euro events and other initiatives that can complement more traditional methods. Stronger pan-European actions will be needed to counter a return to nationalism, sectionalism or an increase in divergence between and within countries.	Accept (but with change to “European actions”)
E6. Congress agrees to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) facilitate further exchanges and debates on trade union renewal; b) provide long-term support to affiliates in their recruitment and retention of members and building of engaged workplace organisations where unions are active and visible; c) establish a fund to support recruitment and organising efforts; d) work with affiliates to develop innovative responses to new ways of working and to adapt recruitment and organising techniques to make the best of digital tools, reaching out to public service workers no matter where and how they work; 	Amendment from the CRC: E6.c) establish a voluntary fund to support recruitment and organising efforts;	Accept (clarification)

Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Amendments	EC recommendations
e) encourage cooperation between unions to develop strategies to increase overall trade union density; f) build progressive, democratic, gender-balanced and independent trade unions at all levels, through solidarity work and support, in particular, for trade unions struggling against repressive regimes; g) call for measures to prevent union-busting by employers and governments and ensure trade union access to workers, taking full advantage of the provisions of the Adequate Minimum Wages Directive that support this; h) give a strong place in unions to young workers (supporting national youth structures and leadership renewal) and encourage the recruitment of students and trainees; i) support inclusion and the rights of LGBT+, migrant and ethnic minority workers and ensure that they are well represented across union structures; j) strengthen coordination around solidarity actions in support of local and national negotiations, campaigns and industrial action as well as	Proposed amendment by UNISON, UK: E6.i) support inclusion and the rights of LGBT+, migrant and ethnic minority workers, establish and promote networks of these workers, and ensure that they are well represented across union structures; Proposed amendment by French affiliates: E6.i) support inclusion and the rights of LGBT+, migrant and ethnic minority workers and ensure that they are well represented across union structures within the EPSU	Accept in part (but change “establish” to “facilitate”) Accept

Section E: Building and strengthening public service trade unions	Amendments	EC recommendations
European and international initiatives such as public services day; and k) strengthen our capacity to advance and defend our pan-European agenda, through coordinated actions and making the best use of our common and collective resources.	and among affiliates, Proposed amendment by French affiliates, add new point E6.l): E6.l) To make the demands and products of European trade unionism better known, and to promote their relay and use by our members on the ground.	Accept (but change “products” to “successes” and “relay” to “dissemination to”)